

RADIO OPEN CALL | TSONAMI FESTIVAL 2021

TSONAMI FESTIVAL 2021

The context of social crisis in Chile and Latin America, coupled with the global health crisis of COVID-19, have produced profound changes in the ways we relate to each other and build our communities.

The Chilean social outbreak of October 2019 made Tsonami Festival rethink its forms and contents, wondering about the role of art and artists in times of social crisis. While the pandemic made Radio Tsonami activate itself as a meeting and experimentation space in the distance, due to the complexities of getting together physically.

Based on this experience, the 2021 edition of the festival will have a hybrid format between face-to-face and virtual encounters, focused on artistic collectives and sound activism practices, understood as works in/with the territorial and urban context, to address the cultural and social stories of the city from the perspectives of sound and listening.
